New York points in the direction of his having been instrumental in dealing with the Secretary of the Interior. Getting Rid of Bogey Men.

The information here for several days has been that from now on the leaders of the Republican Congresional committe and of the national committee would be found working hard together for Republican success this fall.

It appears that they have come to the conclusion that in order to achieve success, it is necessary to get rid of certain bogey men, who have caused embarrassment to the party and wought disaffection among the voters.

These bogey men included Mr. Ballinger, Mr. Cannon and Mr. Aldrich.

linger, Mr. Cannon and Mr. Aldrich.

Just what part Mr. Taft has had in this himself is not clear. It is pretty plain that what is being done has at least his tacit approval.

The man who is credited with pulling off the actual transaction is Private Secretary Norton. Mr. Norton is a capable and vigorous young man who used to be in the lire insurance business and who is apparently swayed by an ambition to have done what is best for his Chief and his party regardless of the toll of political heads that may be taken.

It is not overstating the case to say of the toll of political neads that may be taken.

It is not overstating the case to say that a new and more astute regime, with younger men potent, is now in the saddle at Beverly.

Reasons For Changes.

Among the developments that have driven the Republican leaders, including Chairman McKinley of the Republican Congressional committee, to see that an overhauling was imperative, are the results of the Kansas primaries and of the recent Iowa convention. The disastrous results accruing from sending Speaker Cannon into Kansas have jarred both the Congressional leaders and the Administration.

Senator Crane, who is a sagacious and long-headed politician, uncoubtedly learned some things he did not theretofore know in his Western trip about the strength of insurgerey in the Republican party. No question is lican Congressionale committee, to see the Republican party. No question is raised here that he had been anxiously helping in the work of casting off some of the burdens of the party and the Administration. Since it was learned that a cabal of since it was learned that a cabal of able men close to the President had set about to get rid of Mr. Ballinger, the feeling has been pronounced here that he would sooner or later have to go, and that his position would be untenable.

His resignation will be a hard blow to him, and humiliating to him personally. It is said he has sunk his personal fortune in the troubles he has had over the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

That an active, aggressive campaign for the continued Republican control of the House will be made, with all the Congressional and national committee leaders co-operating, may be confidently expected.

Roosevelt Scares Regulars.

What adds to the intense interest of the situation is the information, which has come here in various which has come here in various ways, and is credited in many quarters, that Theodore Roosevelt, in his Western trip, will speak out strongly for progressive policies, will give aid and comfort to the insurgents, and will give scant sympathy to the Administration of the old guard of the Republican party.

Should Roosevelt do this, it will be widely looked on, in the absence of a specific disavowal, as a bid for another term as President, and for the nomination in 1912.

Speeches of this sort would be followed by a powerful movement to nominate Roosevelt.

Undoubtedly, the Taft leaders, who Undoubtedly, the Taft leaders, who are in the air as to Roosevelt's intentions, appreciate this to the fullest extent.
